HAVE YOU PLANNED YOUR CAREER?

Plywood is a household word, and U. S. Plywood-Champion Papers Inc. is synonymous with leadership in the field of both hardwood and softwood plywoods, as well as related building products and paper.

U. S. Plywood-Champion Papers Inc. has led in making prefinished hardwood plywood available in almost every economic bracket. The use of prefinished paneling as decorative wall material for offices, public buildings, as well as new and older homes, appears to be limitless.

Sales have grown commensurately with production, which, together with research and other contributions in the building materials field, has increased U. S. Plywood-Champion Papers Inc. sales from $107 million in 1952 to over one billion dollars in 1967. The reward for its quality of products and outstanding service has been the growth of U. S. Plywood-Champion Papers Inc. to one of the top 100 industrial corporations in this country. Chemists, physicists and wood technologists--working in our Research Laboratories--help make it possible for more than 750 salesmen and sales engineers throughout this country and Canada to offer the best choice of structural and decorative materials available anywhere to architects, industrial users and builders. Today the building industry represents a fantastic $52 billion market; it will continue to grow. U. S. Plywood-Champion Papers Inc. could help you to become a part of the growth with that burgeoning market. Write or call for an interview.

L.S.U. SCHOOL OF FORESTRY AND WILDLIFE MANAGEMENT

BATON ROUGE, LOUISIANA.

DEDICATION

Dr. William C. "Bill" Hopkins was a man not easily forgotten. During his twelve years on the faculty here at LSU, Bill Hopkins left his mark. In an age which popularized metals, plastics and glass, Dr. Hopkins worked to prove the usefulness of wood. He expressed the belief, through lectures, scholarly articles and laboratory work, that wood, properly processed, merited comparison with steel and masonry as a construction material. While at LSU, Dr. Hopkins taught advanced studies in wood utilization and performed extensive research in wood utilization projects.

Dr. Hopkins, a native of Erlanger, Kentucky, received his B.A. degree from the University of Cincinnati, and his master's and doctorate from Yale. His early career was spent working in forest management, pulpwood procurement and forest utilization research. Dr. Hopkins was an associate forester at Mississippi State University before joining the LSU faculty as associate professor. At the time of his death, Dr. Hopkins was serving a three-year term on the executive board of the Forest Products Research Society and was a member of the Society's Employment Committee.

A number of organizations were privileged to have Dr. Hopkins as an active member. These included the Society of American Foresters, Forest Products Research Society, Louisiana Forestry Association, Society of Wood Science and Technology, LSU chapter of Sigma XI, and the Au-Dux Hunting Club. Publications to his credit include more than 30 articles dealing with topics in the fields of wood preservation, wood seasoning and wood finishing.

Also active in civic and church affairs, Dr. Hopkins was an elder of the University Presbyterian Church, where he taught a Sunday School class, and served as an institutional representative for the Boy Scouts of America and Scoutmaster of Troop 52.

Those who knew him best will not remember him as a member of any of the numerous organizations to which he belonged. He will be best remembered as an outstanding person and friend of the students. Men of Bill Hopkins' caliber cannot be replaced. His memory will be cherished and long-lived in the School of Forestry and Wildlife Management.

With great pride, we the members of the staff dedicate this 1968 edition of the Annual Ring to the memory of our beloved Dr. Hopkins.

FORESTER'S LAMENT

The chiggers chew me all the day,
Mosquitos all the night,
No matter how I scratch or swat,
There's still another bite.

Where others see a shady nook,
I find a million ticks.
And, if I pause to rest me there,
Each one into me sticks

A probing prong to bleed me white,
The while I rant and rave,
And dig and scratch and curse the day
That I became a slave

To Forestry - the old skin game
Where, every day and night,
My aching, burning, itching pelt
Feeds some bug's appetite!

THE DIRECTOR'S MESSAGE

In the United States, there are now about 50 schools of forestry. Fall enrollment in these schools in 1966 totaled 11,118 undergraduates, of which 7,000 were in general forestry; the remainder were distributed among wildlife management, range management, forest recreation, and wood technology. Some of the important trends in undergraduate forestry education are:

1. Steady increase in enrollment since the post-war low of 4,691 students in 1952.
2. Increase in number of forestry schools. Also, increase in number of schools accredited by the Society of American Foresters (25 in 1952, 32 in 1967).
3. Expansion of physical facilities, including new buildings.
4. Increase in number and education level of faculty members and decrease in average teaching load.
5. More options and new curricula, including areas such as forest recreation, wildlife management, and a forest science curriculum for students going on to graduate school.
6. Curricula content more basic, more flexible, broader, more math and science and fewer credits in forestry.
7. Less emphasis on how-to-do-it instruction and more on basic principles; more on multiple-use forestry.
8. More transfer students from junior colleges and from colleges where forestry is not offered.
9. Rapid increase in one- and two-year forestry technician schools, particularly in the far West.

The Society was founded here at L. S. U. in 1924 as a social-professional organization. Membership is open to all students enrolled in the School of Forestry and Wildlife Management.

The primary purpose of the Society is to promote the profession of forestry. Meetings are held twice monthly. Throughout the year, various leaders in the profession of forestry speak at meetings on subjects in particular fields.

Activities of the Society include a "Freshman Smoker," fall and spring "Initiations," a "Christmas Party" at which the elected sweetheart is presented, a "Spring Party" and a "Spring Field Day."

The Society is financed by projects carried out by its members. These projects include Rodeo drink sales, Christmas tree sales, and cutting pulpwood. The Society presents a $100.00 scholarship to a Junior who has contributed most to the furtherance of the Society's objectives. The Society also publishes the Annual Ring, which is a record of the activities of the School of Forestry and Wildlife Management.

Xi Sigma Pi, the national forestry honor fraternity, was founded at the University of Washington on November 24, 1908. The local chapter, Nu, was founded at the L.S.U. School of Forestry on April 13, 1940.

The objectives of Xi Sigma Pi are to secure and maintain a high standard of scholarship in forestry education, to work for the upbuilding of forestry, and to promote fraternal relations among earnest workers engaged in forestry activities.

Only forestry students of high scholastic ranking and showing promise of attaining high professional achievement are elected to the fraternity. The new members are known as "neophytes" during the informal initiation and become active members after the formal ceremony.

Xi Sigma Pi projects are the presentation of the Outstanding Sophomore Award in forestry each year and the maintenance of the forestry alumni distribution map in the lobby of the Forestry Building.

ALUMNUS-OF-THE-YEAR AWARD

Presented by the Faculty

School of Forestry & Wildlife Management

Mr. Jeff D. Hughes, Jr. is the recipient of the current Alumnus of the Year Award. He graduated in Forestry in 1949, and is an active member of the LSU Forestry & Wildlife Management Alumni Association.

Mr. Hughes is employed as District Manager by the Crown Zellerbach Corporation. He serves on the Board of Directors for the Louisiana Forestry Association and as Chairman of the State Tree Farm Committee, Louisiana Forestry Association. He is on the executive committee of the Gulf State Section of the Society of American Foresters and is also an active member of the Southeast Louisiana group of the state Chapter.

His home is in Denham Springs, Louisiana, where he is a member of the Chamber of Commerce and President of the Denham Springs Rotary Club. In 1966, Mr. Hughes was chairman of the Livingston Parish United Givers Fund. He also coaches a Little League baseball team for the Denham Springs Parks and Recreation Commission.

Mr. Hughes has written the following article for the Annual Ring:

Foresters throughout the United States are becoming increasingly aware that they are being faced with tremendous pressures for other uses for lands now classified as forest lands. Each passing year sees additional acreage being permanently transferred to such uses as roadways, utility rights-of-way, industrial sites, home-sites, schools, and recreational areas that are non-forest oriented. Coupled with this is the fact that in many areas real estate values, due to this ever increasing demand for land, have increased to such a point that many land owners are deciding that they cannot afford to grow timber on their land and are instead reaching for the quicker financial returns to be gained through other uses.

Assuming that the basic reason for this increasing demand for other uses of land is due to our ever expanding population, the long range forecast is even more disheartening. It is conservatively estimated that, during the next decade, something over 3,000,000 people will be added, net, to the population each year. By 1980 there will be in excess of 235,000,000 Americans, compared with today's approximately 200,000,000.

Year by year the nation's cities are expanding. Their boundaries will ultimately converge, forming what will be known in the future as a "megapolis". It has been predicted that such a megapolis will cover nearly the entire Gulf Coast region, stretching from the area of Houston, Texas, to near Pensacola, Florida. Think of the tremendous number of people that will live in this area, and of the vast land areas which will be converted from forest land to sites for industrial plants, homes, and recreation areas.

Almost daily in our newspapers and magazines we come upon the term "land reform". It is usually in connection with the breaking down of large estates in Central Africa, or in South America. Do not for a minute think that we here in the United States are immune. Already several states have considered legislation that would limit the acreage that could be held by one owner. Fortunately, such acts have failed to pass, and doubt has been cast on their constitutionality. But what do you think is going to happen if an ill informed megalopolis-controlled society decides that its needs for land is all important, and, as is already the case, a socialistically inclined Supreme Court bases its interpretation of the Constitution upon changing public opinion rather than upon the wording? Can forestry survive the population explosion?

The crux of the matter is this. When the time for decision comes, will foresters be in a position to be heard, with opinions that will bear weight? Will our profession be recognized as one which can be depended upon to make mature recommendations, based upon knowledge and understanding, for the benefit of our country, or will it be regarded as a well meaning but inept group of outdoor-minded provincials?

I believe that there are several ways in which the present day forester can prepare himself for the coming battle. First and foremost, he should strive to improve his image as a professional man. There is one easy way to be recognized as a professional - that is to act like one. No amount of legislation or registration is going to improve our professional status in the eyes of the public. We are judged in three ways - by our actions, by our appearance, and by the company we keep. A forester should be a leader in his community, taking part in civic and political affairs. With particular reference to the latter, we should not hide our heads in the sand, but should openly support public officials who will return support to us when the occasion demands. A forester should demand adequate compensation for his services, and should do everything possible to discourage the prevailing belief that advice or other services from a forester are free for the asking. As to appearance, we all realize that foresters have a certain amount of field work to do, and that only field clothing is appropriate for this. We are of necessity at times both dirty and briar torn. This can be compensated for by being extremely careful of our attire when making public appearances. A forester who has on many occasions made public addresses, and whom I admire greatly, once told me that when making a public appearance he always planned to be as well dressed as the best dressed man in the audience. This is the mark of a professional man.

A forester should enhance his position by continuing his education throughout his career. The earning of a degree should be considered as a high point only in his formal education, while his informal education should have no end. The forester who accepts employment of a half professional, half technical nature, and who remains there because he likes the outdoor nature of the work, or doesn't want to change his living location, or has failed to keep himself abreast of modern developments and techniques, may be satisfying his living requirements, but he is doing an injustice to himself and to his profession. I know that we cannot all be Vice-Presidents, or State Foresters, or Department Directors, but who would deny that every forester should be preparing himself for the day when he might have the opportunity of holding an important job. And well qualified, well respected people in important positions is what we will need when the time of decision arrives.

Last, but not least, a forester can insure the survival of his profession by organizing. Become a member of the L. S. U. School of Forestry and Wildlife Management Alumni Association, of your State Forestry Association, and of the Society of American Foresters. How many times have I heard a forester say "I don't belong to the L. F. A. because they haven't ever helped me, or I don't belong to the S. A. F. because I can't afford to." These people had better wake up before it's too late. The truth of the matter is that these and other organizations have sponsored and advanced programs that have been of major economic importance, and that have literally helped create employment and raise salaries of foresters. "Can't afford to" should become "can't afford not to".

Time and time again it has been proven that in our democratic form of government, whenever conflicting interests must be debated and decided upon, it is always the well organized, well staffed, and well financed side that carries the day. The voice of a few foresters, crying in the wilderness, will not be heard.

The forester who contributes to the prestige of his profession by the way he carries out his daily work, who contributes to the welfare of his community, who keeps himself abreast of the ever changing technological age in which we live, who continues his education throughout his career, and who actively belongs to and contributes to organizations which will represent him before the higher levels of our government - This is the forester who will be doing his share to determine that forestry will survive the population explosion.

Georgia-Pacific shouts "timber-r-r" in the Amazon jungle.

The native skillfully guides the raft of virola logs along the narrow, twisting jungle stream. Destination: the storage pond of Georgia-Pacific's veneer plant at Portel, Brazil, near the mouth of the Amazon River. Here the valuable logs are peeled into wafer-thin sheets of wood, which are shipped to our Savannah, Georgia, hardwood plywood operations. Finally, the veneers beautify homes and offices all over America and the world in Georgia-Pacific's decorative hardwood paneling.

Philippine Timber, Too

The South American logs come from our 640,000 acres of timberland in the dense Brazilian jungle . . . source of at least 5 billion board feet of Georgia-Pacific timber. Halfway across the world in the Philippines, we have cutting rights on approximately 2 billion board feet of lauan, known as Philippine mahogany. Some of our Philippine logs are sold in Taiwan, Japan, Korea and other Asian countries. Veneers from other logs are used to make decorative paneling by Georgia-Pacific in Eugene, Oregon.

35 Billion Board Feet Supply

In all, we own or control 35 billion board feet of timber around the world. It is managed on a sustained yield basis to insure sufficient supply for tomorrow's needs . . . an important factor in our planning. The U.S. Forest Service expects domestic demand for products from wood to double by the end of the century. Development of overseas timber sources to augment our growing domestic supply is another example of how Georgia-Pacific continues to live up to its reputation as the Growth Company.

Some foresters just don't look like they used to!

But they aren't what they used to be, either.

The industrial forester has come a long way since his only job was "preventing fires and logging the mill."

Today, he is moving on to greater responsibilities and more demanding jobs. The key has been education. In fact, at International Paper Company we have more than 325 graduate foresters in the South, some holding M.S. and Ph.D. degrees.

In addition to planting, growing, protecting and harvesting trees, I-P's modern foresters are involved in the purchase and sale of land and timber, wood procurement, labor relations, wildlife management, public relations, recreational development, conservation, administration, research, and the use of computers.

No, the modern forester doesn't look like he used to. But, as we said, he isn't what most people think he is either.

Crown Zellerbach
SOUTHERN TIMBER OPERATIONS

Since the LSU forestry camp first began on land donated by our predecessor company back in the 1920's, we have always welcomed the opportunity of being "Good Neighbors."

Crown Zellerbach recognizes the important contributions made by the LSU School of Forestry. We are honored and pleased that its students receive some of their training on our timberlands.

Crown Zellerbach's foresters look forward to working with each year's class, providing lectures and tours, and sharing of their experience.

We've enjoyed being neighbors and invite you to visit us again.

The hours I spent

To proof this Ring!

If a wise owl I be,

This will be the last -

Someone else can have the task -

And join here with me!

The cover of THE ANNUAL RING this year is FLATCUT RED BIRCH DESIGNER FLEXWOOD--a laminate approximately 16 mils thick of 1/85" real veneer and a non-woven fiber backing. It is manufactured by the Flexible Materials Division of U. S. Plywood-Champion Papers Inc. in sheet sizes up to 48 x 144".

DESIGNER FLEXWOOD is used as a decorative surface on stable substrates such as steel, aluminum, plastics, fiberglass, particleboard, plywood, or hardboard. It provides product designers and manufacturers with practical solutions to design problems on such varied products as furniture, decorative desk accessories, lighting and fluorescent fixtures, refrigerator doors, interior doors, automobile interiors (including instrument panels, door trim and horn ring inserts), movable partitions, aircraft interiors, etc..

Its companion product--ARCHITECTURAL FLEXWOOD--is of the same construction except that it has a cloth instead of a non-woven fiber backing and is approximately 17 mils thick. It is primarily a wall covering and can be applied with equal facility to flat, curved or formed surfaces. Architectural Flexwood is manufactured in sheets from 12 to 24" wide and lengths up to a maximum of 12'.

DESIGNER FLEXWOOD and ARCHITECTURAL FLEXWOOD are both available in approximately eighty domestic and imported woods of choice grain and figure.

For additional information on Designer and/or Architectural Flexwood, write U. S. Plywood-Champion Papers Inc., Box 17183, Louisville, Kentucky, 40217.
