ABSTRACT

This catalogue presents 146 twentieth-century Spanish composers with 219 pieces for cello and piano. Pieces collected in this catalogue are largely original works for cello and piano. However, a few pieces in which the arrangement has been made by the composer or under the composer's supervision have been included. Some foreign composers working in Spain for many years have also been included. The body contains the entries by the composer's last name in alphabetical order. Each entry will include as much information as possible within the following guide: complete name and dates of the composer, complete title of the piece, date and place of composition, first performance information, publisher, date and city of publication (if ever published), recordings. Also, additional information such as number of movements, approximate duration, dedications, references to specific sources, location of manuscript... will be displayed within a space devoted to observations. Besides a listing of the multiple sources consulted (books, catalogues, internet sources, sheet music, recordings and unpublished material), the catalogue provides several helpful appendixes referring to: Publishers, Record labels, Archives, Composers in chronological order and Works by approximated duration. The monograph concludes with a Vita of the author.

1. INTRODUCTION

Knowledge of pieces for cello and piano composed by Spaniards in the twentieth century had been limited for a long time to only few works. Pieces suggesting Spanish folklore had always received preferential treatment by publishers, record companies, and audiences. In order to enlarge that scenario, this catalogue seeks to shed light on as many works as possible from the Spanish repertoire for cello and piano.

To assemble a catalogue of this kind, it was necessary to follow a well planned research procedure. This procedure was as follows:

- a) First, I made a linguistic description of the subject in both Spanish and English. Examples of such usage would be Spain/España, Spanish/Español, Music/Musica, Cello/Violonchelo/Violoncelo/Chelo, Catalogue/Catálogo, etc.
- b) I contacted publishers and distributors of Spanish music. They provided catalogs of their products which of course turned out to be very helpful.
- c) I contacted record companies as well as the Spanish National Radio (Classical Music Department). The most helpful source in this area was the Spanish National Radio's (RNE/Radio Clásica) sound archive catalogue. That particular unpublished document featured pieces recorded by that radio station since the 1950's, and proved to be extremely helpful in tracking down less known pieces.
- d) I checked Spanish music periodicals, newly released books, individual composer's catalogues and monographs.
- e) I contacted the National and Regional Associations of Composers and in various cases the composers themselves.
- f) Finally, I reviewed web pages of all of the above. Institutions such as the Spanish National Composer Society (SGAE), the Catalan Composer Society (ACC), the Basque-Navarre Composer Society (ACVN), all had important data bases on line. Also, composers, libraries, archives, record companies, music publishers, etc. had interesting web pages where relevant data was obtained.

While assembling this catalogue, I had to make several decisions in order to control the scope of the work:

First, the principal goal was to collect pieces specifically intended for cello and piano. Therefore, I rejected arrangements for cello and piano in which composers were not clearly involved. Even some well known arrangements such as Manuel de Falla's "Suite Populaire Espagnole" has been omitted.

Second, and as a general rule, I included composers rather than excluded them, if there were any doubt about their citizenship. Verification of the citizenship of some foreign composers living and working in Spain, as well as of Spaniards born and working abroad, proved to be extremely difficult.

Third, the various languages of the sources were respected. The information for this document was found not only in English and Spanish (Castilian), but in other co-official languages of Spain such as Catalan and Gallego. An example of this practice would be the appearance in this catalogue of either Pau (Catalan) or Pablo (Castilian) Casals.

Finally, it is necessary to inform the reader of the tremendous differences between music documentation from the beginning to the end of the century. Due to the Spanish Civil War (1936-1939) and the following dictatorship, data was consistently missing or still unavailable. However, data of the past 26 years (restoration of democracy) is obviously available and plentiful. Moreover, due to different levels of social development, not all of the regions of Spain are equally well documented .

In conclusion, I hope that this catalogue will fulfill the expectations of those musicians and scholars interested in Spanish cello and piano music.

VITA

Born in Las Palmas de Gran Canaria, Gabriel Delgado Morán started his music studies with his father. Later on he attended the Conservatorio Profesional de Música in Granada. He holds the Título Profesional, Conservatorio Superior de Música de Córdoba (1993) at Mr. Álvaro Campos' studio; Título Superior, Conservatorio Superior de Música de Granada; Master of Music in Cello Performance, and a Doctorate in Musical Arts at Louisiana State University School of Music where he worked in Mr. Dennis Parker's cello studio. From 1996-1999, he studied conducting under Mr. Michael Buttermann. He has participated in master classes by Lazlo Varga, Aldo Parisot, Erik Friedman and the Audubon Quartet among others. He has been a member of the Baton Rouge Symphony Orchestra and collaborator with the Orquesta Ciudad de Granada and Orquesta Ciudad de Málaga. In 2000, he was appointed Cello Professor at the Conservatorio Profesional de Música "Francisco Guerrero" in Seville (Spain) where he also is the conductor in charge of the orchestral studies. For the past few years, since returning to Spain, he has taught cello and conducted at the summer music festivals: Curso de Instrumentos de Cuerda de Sierra Nevada, and Música y Naturaleza both hosted in Granada (Spain). He appears as a cellist in recitals and chamber music concerts throughout Spain.
