I have been blessed to come in contact with many wonderful people throughout my life, many of whom never even realized how much they meant to me. But, their inspiration, kind words, nudges, roadblocks and even rejections have made me the man and the actor I am today. Although this acknowledgment page won’t sufficiently express my feelings towards the people I am mentioning, I wanted to at least preserve it on paper.

First and foremost, I have to thank my parents. My mom and dad mean more to me than I will ever be able to tell them. Their devotion to our family and to their faith has taught me that no matter where I go, or what I do, I will always have a family that loves me and a God that will never leave me. I have said it my whole life, but just to reiterate, I will never forget where I came from. Mom and Dad, I love you! Thank you for believing in me.

Thanks to Robyn for giving me the most precious gift in the world, Mary Emma. It will be hard living so far from you, so you have to promise to visit. You have always been a confidant and you were always there to protect your little brother. Thank you for leading me to Auburn and getting me to audition for Singers. I wish you had been there longer, because I know we would have had wonderful memories. Nevertheless, I owe much of my time at Auburn to you and it was the most influential time of my life.

Thanks to my pre-LSU mentors: Rebecca Shofner, Mike Spivey, Stephen Elrod, Ralph Miller and T.R. Smith. You guys taught me the skills I needed to be an artist and encouraged me to follow my dream to be an actor.

To my professors at LSU: Annmarie Davis, the best recruiter LSU ever had, and her husband Bob; Nick Erickson, who taught me that the body is a work of art, and reminded me of my passion for the theatre; Jo Curtis Lester, who not only instructed us, but also took care of us, both mentally and physically; and especially John Dennis.

    JD, I would follow you to the end of the Earth, because I trust that you wouldn’t let me fall off. You have not only taught me the fundamentals of acting, but you are sending me away with this knowledge: selling tickets is somebody else’s problem. We are artists and have a duty to ourselves to create. Thank you for giving me so many chances to create these past three years including this thesis role. I look forward to many more opportunities. Oh, and I still don’t think bushes are funny.

    To my beautiful Erin. For three years, I have been in awe of the love you have for life. You have the most beautiful heart of anyone I have ever met. Thank you for your hugs, your encouragements, your loyalty and your time. Thank you for your belief in our relationship, your love of God, your dedication to family and your smiles. You always know how to cheer me up, how to make me laugh and how to take my mind off of work with silly games. You truly are a gift. Mmmmmmmwwwwwwwwaaaaaaannggggggaaa!

    Finally, thanks to the best classmates in the history of the M.F.A. program: Deb, Chris, Jenn, Lib and Smitty. I never thought I would love five other people as much as I love you guys. I will always be proud to hang my hammer.

    Debbie, you have been a great mom for the class. Thanks for always checking on us. Chris, thanks for your unpredictability and your loyalty. I never knew what to expect, which made acting with you exciting and new every single time. I also know any of us could ask you for anything and you would oblige without question. I look forward to experiencing the city with you. Jenn, thank you for your humor. I will never forget the arm trick, the box springs incident, the chair incident, the head-wrapping in Chekov,
“Injurious Hermia,” bobbing for beer, the Jenga game, Union, our first kiss, the “revealing” north country scene, Mary and something about a sheep and a shepherd just to name a few. If I could take one thing with me to live on a deserted island it would definitely be our Crash. Lib and Smitty, it all started three March’s ago in 168 with a car accident and a one-night stand. We didn’t know each other, but I knew then, I had found two of the best friends I would ever have. Libby, you are one of the only people I have ever met, that I truly would lay down my life for. Your sweet spirit and passion for people is unlike anything I have ever seen. I will never forget the cute girl that screwed up her audition, but through sheer competitive determination asked to start again and then nailed it. Thank God you did, because it wouldn’t have been the same without you.

Thank you for your honesty and friendship. I can’t wait to see what happens next.

Smitty, for three years you have shown me what it is like to have a brother. We have competed, we have argued, we have worked together and even lived together. You have mentored me and at the same time, trusted me to give you advice. But most of all, like a big brother should, you have set an example of what a husband should be. Some day I will get married and I pray that I can be the husband I see in you. Thank you for giving me something I never had, a brother.

ABSTRACT

The role of Proteus in The Two Gentlemen of Verona written by William Shakespeare was selected as a thesis project in the fall semester of 2002. This thesis is a written record of the actor’s work on the character throughout the rehearsal process and performance of the production in the form of an Actor’s Score. It also includes an Introduction, Character Analysis, Research, Photos and a Conclusion.
INTRODUCTION

This thesis is a character study of Proteus, often defined as the villain in William Shakespeare’s comedy The Two Gentlemen of Verona. It is easy to see why the term “villain” is used to describe him. During the course of the play, Proteus, through a series of lies and cunning deceptions, betrays his best friend Valentine and his only love Julia. He gets Valentine banished and takes advantage of his absence by moving in on Valentine’s love Silvia, eventually attempting to rape her. It is also easy to see why many theatres will not touch this play. After all, in the span of two lines of text, Valentine not only forgives Proteus, but he offers Silvia to him as a token of his forgiveness. Many theatre scholars have claimed that Shakespeare got bored with the play and therefore had to find a quick, meaningless ending, thus rendering it “unplayable.”

My first bout with the play was two years ago in a summer stock theatre in Cape Cod, Massachusetts, in which I played the role of Panthino. I must admit, that production was in line with the scholars. The ending came out of nowhere, because there was never a real connection made between Proteus and Valentine, therefore it didn’t make sense for Valentine to forgive Proteus. The actor playing Proteus seemed to concentrate on his lust for Silvia and overwhelmed the audience with indicated meanness and evil. The audience left dumbfounded at what they had just seen, and I promised myself to one day play the role and try to do it the justice it deserves.

I got that chance sooner than I thought in this thesis production. I chose a different approach to Proteus by focusing specifically on his relationship to Valentine. I tried to create a bond of friendship between the two so strong that forgiveness would no longer be a far-fetched option; it would be a certainty.

This idea was facilitated by my director’s concept for the play – his placement of Shakespeare’s text in the setting of the 1960’s. In our production, the characters would leave their sheltered, high school lives in conservative Kansas and travel to the mystical world of San Francisco, right in the middle of the American hippie movement. He and I decided that there must be a reason behind Proteus’ downfall. By making him Valentine’s runner up in everything from high school football fame to peer adoration and love making, Proteus has a reason to be jealous and acts on that jealousy in hopes of finally winning a victory over Valentine. Although he is out of control, Valentine is still able to forgive him, because of the brother-like bond the two have created throughout their lives. Thus the audience had to understand both the love and hate between the two men.

Challenging? Yes, but with the help of R.W. Smith, someone with whom I have already known this same bond of brotherhood, playing opposite me as Valentine, it was an adventure well taken.

This thesis is a documentation of the process that led me to understand the role of Proteus and his relationship to Valentine. All quotes and references to the text contained herein come from The Two Gentlemen of Verona, published by Penguin Shakespeare and edited by Norman Sanders, copyright December, 1981. It consists of a Character Analysis and a four column Score of the role. The Character Analysis is designed to help the actor fill in the blanks about the character through a series of questions. Some answers to these questions are found throughout the text or are derived from hints left by Shakespeare, including the rhythm and scansion of the Elizabethan text. Other answers are discovered in the actor’s imagination throughout the production process. The Score is an outlined course of action that the actor can use to steer himself toward his overall goals. It is made up of: all the text of the scenes in which the actor plays; choices about what the character wants to do to the other characters around him in order to get something accomplished (Tactics); choices about those things that are impeding the actor from achieving his objectives, whether physical or emotional, real or imagined, internal or external (Obstacles); and choices about what physical or visual stimuli is triggering the actor’s senses (Images). This Score is an opening-night map that is constantly evolving according to decisions made by other actors, additional experience and new discoveries and is not intended to lock the actor into a pattern, but instead provide a guide to fresh creation.

Swine Palace Productions at Louisiana State University produced The Two Gentlemen of Verona on November 7, 2002 in the Reilly Theatre. It was performed 15 times during the following three weeks including three matinees for local area students. John Dennis directed the production. The cast was as follows: Valentine, R.W. Smith; Proteus, Adam B. Hose; Speed, Jennifer Kelley; Julia, Libby King; Lucetta, Allison Glenzer; Antonio, Chris Cariker; Panthino, Preston Davis; Silvia, Debbie Fleming; Launce, Shawn Halliday; Duke, Graham Frye; Thurio, Chaney Tullos; Eglamour, John Lambremont, Jr.; Ursala/Cheerleader, Sarah Jane Johnson; Various Football Players/Cheerleaders/Hippies/Outlaws/Solid Gold Dancers/Guards, Kevin Brown, Nathan Frizzell, Jennifer Falgout, Brace Harris, David Huber, Eric Little, Tara MacMullen, Rebecca Nicole Many, Michelle McCoy, Thomas Smith, Kuniqua Stewart,
Reed Wiley. Matt Bankston was the assistant director and Ellie Sturgill was the stage manager.
CHARACTER ANALYSIS

Autobiography:

I was born May 19, 1949 in Verona, Kansas, a small town about thirty miles outside the capital city of Topeka. My mother, Mary Katherine, and my father, Antonio, were raised in a very sheltered, Episcopal household and made no changes with my upbringing. I was taught to go to church every week, to eat three square meals a day and to work hard in school, both in the classroom and on the athletic fields. I was educated in the public school system in Verona, attending class with the same students from grammar school to high school.

My next-door neighbors have been the same ever since I can remember and are a very similar family to mine. Their son Valentine has always been my best friend. He was six months older than me, and developed a little faster than I did. He was always more athletic and successful with the girls than I was, but I always had him beat when it came to brains.

We had a great time together growing up. If there was prank pulled off in town, everyone always looked to Valentine and me. We attended camp together as kids and in the ninth grade, we went on our first dates together to the harvest dance. I took Julia and Valentine took some girl who eventually moved away later that year. I don’t remember her name because Valentine almost never had a steady girlfriend; he dated lots of girls. But not me, I dated Julia all through high school.

Julia was the love of my life. She was a cheerleader and I was the quarterback of the football team. She was my first date and I was hers. She was my first kiss and I was hers. It seemed perfect. Julia’s family was wealthier than mine, in fact, she had her own private nurse, just like they did in Elizabethan England, but she never let her money get in the way. We loved each other, and we would have done anything to be together.

What does Proteus say about himself?

“He after honour hunts, I after love. He leaves his friends to dignify them more; I leave myself, my friends and all for love.”

“…love wounded Proteus…poor, forlorn Proteus, passionate Proteus…”

“Thus have I shunned the fire for fear of burning, And drenched me in the sea where I am drowned. I feared to show my father Julia’s letter, Lest he should take exception to my love, And with the vantage of mine own excuse, Hath he excepted most against my love.”

“When possibly I can, I will return.”

“Here is my hand for my true constancy; And when that hour o’erslips me in the day Wherein I sigh not Julia for thy sake, The next ensuing hour some foul mischance Torment me for my love’s forgetfulness.”

“…to mean a servant”

“My duty do I boast of, nothing else.”

“When I was sick, you gave me bitter pills.”

“I must unto the road to disembark Some necessities that I needs must use.”

“…and so is Julia that I love – That I did love…”

“I love him not as I was wont. O, but I love his lady too too much!”

”’Tis but her picture I have yet beheld, And that hath dazzlèd my reason’s light.”
“There is no reason but I shall be blind.”

“If I can check this erring love, I will.”
“To leave my Julia, I shall be foresworn;
To love fair Silvia, I shall be foresworn;
To wrong my friend, I shall be much foresworn.
And e’en that power which gave me first my oath
Provokes me to this threefold perjury:
Love made me swear, and love bids me foreswear.”

“At first I did adore a twinkling star,
But now I worship a celestial sun.”

“Fie, fie, unreverend tongue…”

“I cannot leave to love, and yet I do;
But there I leave to love where I should love.
Julia I lose, and Valentine I lose;
If I keep them, I needs must lose myself.”

“I to myself am dearer than a friend.”

“…remembering that my love for her is dead.”

“I cannot now prove constant to myself
Without some treachery used to Valentine.”

“…myself in counsel, his competitor.”

“…undeserving as I am…”

“…myself am one made privy to the plot.”

“Longer than I prove loyal to your grace
Let me not live to look upon your grace.”

“…I shall be loath to do.”

“Already have I been false to Valentine,
And now I must be as unjust to Thurio;
Under the colour of commending him
I have access my own love to prefer.”

“Yet, spaniel-like, the more she spurns my love
The more it grows and fawneth on her still.”
“...if you knew his pure heart’s truth...”

“I grant sweet love, I did love a lady.”

“I am but a shadow.”

“...thou shalt find me sad and solitary.”

“And I will follow, more for Silvia’s love
Than hate of Eglamour, that goes with her.”

“I’ll woo you like a soldier.”

“My shame and guilt confounds me.”

“I do as truly suffer as ere I did commit.”

“Bear witness, heaven, I have my wish forever.”

What do other characters say about Proteus?

Valentine: “Home-keeping youth have ever homely wits.”

Valentine: “Than, living dully sluggardized at home,
Wear out thy youth with shapeless idleness.
But, since thou lovest, love still, and thrive therein.”

Valentine: “‘Tis true; for you are over-boots in love,
And yet you never swam the Hellespont.”

Valentine: “Love is you master, for he masters you;
And he that is so yokèd by a fool,
Methinks should not be chronicled for wise.”

Valentine: “But wherefore waste I time to counsel thee
That are a votary to fond desire?”

Speed: “Now you have taken the pains to set it together, take it for your pains.”

Speed: “Truly, sir, I think you’ll hardly win her.”

Lucetta: “Then thus: of many good, I think him best.”

Julia: “Why, he, of all the rest, hath never moved me.”
His little speaking shows his love but small.”

Lucetta: “Yet, he, of all the rest, I think best loves ye.”

Panthino: “He wondered that your lordship
Would suffer him to spend his youth at home…”

Panthino: “He said that Proteus, you son, was meet…
in have known no travel in his youth.”

Antonio: “I have considered well his loss of time,
Not being tried and tutored in the world.”

Panthino: “…worthy his youth and nobleness of birth.”

Valentine: “I know him as myself; for from our infancy
We have conversed and spent our hours together…
Yet hath Sir Proteus – for that’s his name –
Made use and fair advantage of his days:
His years but young, but his experience old;
His head unmellowed, but his judgment ripe;
And in a word, for far behind his worth
Comes all the praises that I now bestow,
He is complete in feature and in mind,
With all good grace to grace a gentleman.”

Duke: “Beshrew me, sir, but if he make this good,
He is a worthy for an empress’ love
As meet to be an emperor’s counselor.
Well, sir, this gentleman comes to me
With commendation from great potentates,
And here he means to spend his time awhile.”

Valentine: “This is the gentleman I told your ladyship
Had come along with me but that his mistress
Did hold his eyes locked in her crystal looks.”

Silvia: “His worth is warrant for his welcome hither,
If this be he you oft have wished to hear from.”

Valentine: “Good Proteus…”

Launce: “Marry thus: when it stands well with him,
It stands well with her.”

Launce: “I never knew him otherwise. Than a notable lubber.”
Speed: “I tell thee thy master is become a hot lover.”

Julia: “…his looks are my soul’s food.”

Julia: “But when his fair course is not hindered, He makes sweet music with th’enamelled stones, Giving a gentle kiss to every sedge He overtaketh in his pilgrimage; And so by many winding nooks he strays, With willing sport, to the wild ocean.”

Julia: “But truer stars did govern Proteus’ birth; His words are bonds, his oaths are oracles, His love sincere, his thoughts immaculate, His tears pure messengers sent from his heart, His heart as far from fraud as heaven from earth.”

Duke: “Proteus, the good conceit I hold of thee – For thou hast shown some sign of good desert – Makes me the better to confer with thee.”

Duke: “You are already love’s firm votary.”

Thurio: “…my direction giver.”

Julia: “You mistake; the musician likes me not. He plays false, father.”

Silvia: “Thou subtle, perjured, false, disloyal man”

Silvia: “…thy flattery…hast deceived so many with thy vows…”

Silvia: “I despise thee for thy wrongful suit; And by and by intend to chide myself Even for this time I spend talking to thee.”

Silvia: “Art thou not ashamed to wrong him with thy importunacy?”

Silvia: “If ‘twere a substance, you would sure deceive it And make it but a shadow, as am I.”

Silvia: “I am very loath to be your idol, sir; But, since your falsehood shall become you well To worship shadows and adore false shapes…”

Julia (as Sebastian): “…methinks that she loved you as well
As you do love your lady Silvia.
She dreams on him that has forgot her love;
You dote on her that cares not for your love…”

Julia: “Alas, poor Proteus, thou hast entertained
A fox to be the shepherd of thy lambs,
Alas, poor fool, why do I pity him
That with his very heart despiseth me?
Because he loves her, he despiseth me;
Because I love him, I must pity him.”

Silvia: “I will not look upon your master’s lines.
I know they are stuffed with protestations,
And full of new-found oaths, which he will break
As easily as I do tear his paper.”

Silvia: “Though his false finger…”

Julia (as Sebastian): “My master wrongs her much.”

Silvia: “By thy approach thou makest me most unhappy.”

Silvia: “Had I been seizèd by a hungry lion,
I would have been a breakfast to the beast,
Rather than have false Proteus rescue me.”

Silvia: “I do detest false perjured Proteus.”

Silvia: “Read over Julia’s heart, thy first best love,
For whose dear sake thou didst rend thy faith
Into a thousand oaths; and all those oaths
Descended into perjury, to love me.
Thou hast no faith left now, unless thou’dst two,
And that’s far worse than none; better have none
Than plural faith, which is too much by one.
Thou counterfeit to thy true friend!”

Silvia: “All men but Proteus (respect friends).”

Valentine: “Ruffian, let go that rude uncivil touch;
Thou friend of an ill fashion!
Thou common friend that’s without faith or love –
For such is friend now; treacherous man,
Thou hast beguiled my hopes; naught but mine eye
Could have persuaded me. Now I dare not say
I have one friend alive: thou wouldst disprove me.
Who should be trusted now, when one’s right hand
Is perjured to the bosom? Proteus,
I am sorry I must never trust thee more,
But count the world a stranger for thy sake.
The private wound is deepest. O time most accurst!
‘Mongst all foes that a friend should be the worst!’”

Valentine: “And once again I do receive thee honest.”

How does the actor resemble the character?

Outside:
athletic, agile, attractive, good singer

Inside:
Intuitive, cunning, sexual, charming, playful, competitive

How does the actor differ from the character?

Outside:
I am seven years older than Proteus at the time of the play.
I do not dress as country as Proteus.
I did not live in the late 1960’s.
I usually have longer hair.
I was never a quarterback, I played defense.

Inside:
I would never betray my best friend.
I am in better control of myself sexually.
I am not two faced.
Proteus is not affected by guilt.
Proteus is better at hitting on girls.
I have never attempted rape.
I cry more easily than Proteus.

Proteus is a faster talker.

How conscious is Proteus of his true motives?

He has always played second fiddle to Valentine, although he has loved him like a brother. I don’t think Valentine has ever meant any harm to Proteus, so Proteus doesn’t betray him maliciously. He just sees Silvia as a chance to finally score a victory over Valentine. When it doesn’t work out as Proteus wants, he gets caught up in the spiral of lust and power.

VALENTINE: Cease to persuade, my loving Proteus; Home-keeping youth have ever homely wits. Were’t not affection chains thy tender days, I rather would entreat thy company To see the wonders of the world abroad. Than, living dully sluggedized at home, Wear out thy youth with shapeless idleness. But, since thou lovest, love still, and thrive therein, Even as I would when I to love begin.

PROTEUS: Will thou be gone? Sweet Valentine, adieu. Think on thy Proteus, when thou haply seest Some rare noteworthy object in thy travel. Wish me partaker in thy happiness, When thou dost meet good hap; and in thy danger – If ever danger do environ thee – Recommend thy grievance to my holy prayers, For I will be thy beadsman Valentine.

VALENTINE: And on a love book pray for my success?

PROTEUS: Upon some book I love I’ll pray for thee.

| VALENTINE:
That’s on some shallow story of deep love,
How young Leander crossed the Hellespont. | To battle | | I want to go again. |
| PROTEUS:
That’s a deep story of a deeper love,
For he was more than over shoes in love. | | | |
| VALENTINE:
‘Tis true; for you are over-boots in love,
And yet you never swam the Hellespont. | | | |
| PROTEUS:
Over the bots? Nay, give me not the boots. | | | |
| VALENTINE:
No, I will not; for it boots thee not. | | | |
| PROTEUS:
What? | | | |
| VALENTINE:
To be in love, where scorn is bought with groans;
Coy looks, with heart-sore sighs; one fading moment’s mirth,
With twenty watchful, weary, tedious nights;
If haply won, perhaps a hapless gain;
If lost, why then a grievous labour won;
However, but a folly bought with wit,
Or else a wit by folly vanquished. | To ignore | Now he is questioning love. |
PROTEUS:
So, by your circumstance, you call me a fool?

VALENTINE:
So, by your circumstance, I fear you’ll prove.

PROTEUS:
‘Tis love you cavil at; I am not love.

VALENTINE:
Love is your master, for he masters you;
And he that is so yokèd by a fool,
Methinks should not be chronicled for wise.

PROTEUS:
Yet writers say, as in the sweetest bud
The eating canker dwells, so eating love
Inhabits the finest wits of all.

VALENTINE:
And writers say, as the most forward bud
Is eaten by the canker ere it blow,
Even so by love the young and tender wit
Is turned to folly, blasting in the bud,
Losing his verdure even in the prime,
And all the fair effects of future hopes.

But wherefore waste I time to counsel thee
That are a votary to fond desire?
Once more adieu. My father at the road

He always wins and he is winning again.

PROTEUS: The sheep for fodder follow the shepherd; the shepherd for food follows not the sheep. Thou for wages followest thy master, thy master for wages follows not thee. Therefore thou art a sheep.

SPEED: Such another proof will make me cry, 'baa'.

He is pressing me and Pantino is blocking the door.

To get out of there

Lend me the letter. Let me see what news.

There is no news, my lord, but that he writes how happily he lives, how well beloved, and daily graced by the Duke; wishing me with him, partner of his fortune.

And how stands you affected by his wish?

As one relying on your lordship’s will, and not depending on his friendly wish.

My will is something sorted with his wish. Muse not that I thus suddenly proceed; for what I will, I will, and there an end.

I am resolved that thou shalt spend some time with Valentinus in the Duke’s court. What maintenance thou shalt have from me, like exhibition thou shalt have from me. Tomorrow be in readiness to go. Excuse it not, for I am peremptory.
PROTEUS:
My lord, I cannot be so soon provided.
Please you deliberate a day or two.

ANTONIO:
Look what thou wantest shall be sent after thee.
No more of stay; tomorrow thou must go.
Come on, Panthino; you shall be employed
To hasten on his expedition.

PROTEUS:
Thus have I shunned the fire for fear of burning,
And drenched me in the sea, where I am drowned.
I feared to show my father Julia’s letter,
Lest he should take exceptions to my love,
And with the vantage of mine own excuse
Hath he excepted most against my love.
O, how this spring of love resembleth
The uncertain glory of an April day,
Which no shows all the beauty of the sun,
And by and by a cloud takes all away.

PANTHINO:
Sir Proteus, your father calls for you.
He is in haste; therefore, I pray you go.

PROTEUS:
Why, there it is; my heart accords thereto,
And yet a thousand times it answers, ‘No’.

VALENTINE:
Ay, Proteus, but that life is altered now;
I have done penance for contemning love,
Whose high imperious thoughts have punished me
With bitter fasts, with penitential groans,
With nightly tears, and daily heart-sore sighs;
For, in revenge of my contempt of love,
Love hath chased sleep from my enthrallèd eyes,
And made them watchers of mine own heart’s sorrow.  | To prepare for another game

Now can I break my fast, dine, sup, and sleep,
Upon the very naked name of love.

Even as one heat another heat expels,
Or as one nail by strength drives out another,
So the remembrance of my former love
Is by a newer object quite forgotten.
Is it mine eye, or Valentine’s praise,
Her true perfection, or my false transgression,
That makes me reasonless to reason thus?
She is fair; and so is Julia that I love –
That I did love, for now my love is thawed;
Which, like a waxen image ‘gainst a fire,
Bears no impression of the thing it was.
Methinks my zeal to Valentine is cold,
And that I love him not as I was wont.

To wrong my friend, I shall be much foresworn. And e’en that power which gave me first my oath Provokes me to this threefold perjury: Love made me swear, and love bids me foreswear. O sweet-suggesting love, if thou hast sinned, Teach me, thy tempted subject, to excuse it! At first I did adore a twinkling star, But now I worship a celestial sun. Unheedful vows may heedfully be broken; And he wants wit that wants resolvèd will To learn his wit t’exchange the bad for better. Fie, fie, unreverend tongue, to call her bad Whose sovereignty so oft thou hast preferred

<td>With twenty thousand soul-confirming oaths! I cannot leave to love, and yet I do; But there I leave to love where I should love. Julia I lose, and Valentine I lose; If I keep them, I needs must lose myself; If I lose them, thus find I by their loss: For Valentine, myself; for Julia, Silvia. I to myself am dearer than a friend, For love is still most precious in itself; And Silvia – witness heaven that made her fair – Shows Julia but earthly and common. I will forget that Julia is alive, Remembering that my love for her is dead; And Valentine I’ll hold an enemy, Aiming at Silvia as a sweeter friend. I cannot now prove constant to myself Without some treachery used to Valentine. This night he meaneth with a corded ladder To climb celestial Silvia’s chamber-window, Myself in counsel, his competitor. Now presently I’ll give her father notice Of their disguising and pretended flight, Who, all enraged, will banish Valentine, For Thurio he intends to wed his daughter. But Valentine being gone, I’ll quickly cross By some sly trick blunt Thurio’s dull proceeding. Love, lend me wings to make my purpose swift, As thou has lent me wit to plot this drift!</td>

TEXT

PROTEUS:
That thou art banishèd – O, that’s the news! –
From hence, from Silvia, and from me thy friend.

VALENTINE:
O, I have fed upon this woe already,
And now excess of it will make me surfeit.
Doth Silvia know that I am banishèd?

PROTEUS:
Ay, ay; and she hath offered to the doom –
Which, unreversed, stands in effectual force –
A sea of melting pearl, which some call tears;
Those at her father’s churlish feet she tendered;
With them, upon her knees, her humble self,
Wringing her hands, whose whiteness so became them
As if but now they waxèd pale for woe.
But neither bended knees, pure hands held up,
Sad sighs, deep groans, nor silver-shedding tears,
Could penetrate her uncompassionate sire –
But Valentine, if he be ta’en, must die.
Besides, her intercession chafed him so,
When she for thy repeal was suppliant,
That to close prison he commanded her,
with many bitter threats of biding there.

VALENTINE:
No more; unless the next word that thou speakest
Have some malignant power upon my life;

PROTEUS:
Cease to lament for that thou canst not help, And study help for that which thou lamentest. Time is the nurse and breeder of all good; Here, if thou stay, thou canst not see thy love; Besides, thy staying will abridge thy life. Hope is a lover’s staff; walk hence with that, And manage it against despairing thoughts. Thy letters may be here, though thou art hence, Which, being writ to me, shall be delivered Even in the milk-white bosom of thy love. The time now serves not to expostulate. Come, I’ll convey thee through the city gate; And, ere I part with thee, confer at large Of all that may concern thy love affairs. As thou lovest Silvia, though not for thyself, Regard thy danger, and alone with me.

VALENTINE:
I pray thee, Launce, an if thou seest my girl, Bid her make haste and meet me at the Northgate.

PROTEUS:
Go, sirrah, find her out. Come, Valentine.

DUKE:
Sir Thurio, fear not but that she will love you
Now Valentine is banished from her sight.

THURIO:
Since his exile she has despised me most,
Forsworn my company, and railed at me,
That I am desperate of obtaining her.

DUKE:
This weak impress of love is a figure
Trenchèd in ice, which with an hour’s heat
Dissolves to water, and doth lose his form.
A little time will melt her frozen thoughts,
And worthless Valentine shall be forgot.
How now, Sir Proteus? Is your countryman,
According to our proclamation, gone?

Enter Proteus

The best way is to slander Valentine,
With falsehood, cowardice, and poor descent –
Three things that women highly hold in hate. |  |  |  |
| DUKE:
Ay, but she’ll think that it is spoke in hate. |  |  |  |
| PROTEUS:

Thurio is helpless.

I finally get to be alone with Silvia in her room.
Where you may temper her, by your persuasion,
To hate young Valentine and love my friend.

PROTEUS:
As much as I can do I will effect.
But you, Sir Thurio, are not sharp enough;
You must lay lime to tangle her desires
By wailful sonnets, whose composed rhymes
Should be full-fraught with serviceable vows.

DUKE:
Ay, much is the force of heaven-bred poesy.

PROTEUS:
Say that upon the alter of her beauty
You sacrifice your tears, your sighs, your heart;
Write till your ink be dry, and with your tears
Moist it again, and frame some feeling line
That may discover such integrity;
For Orpheus’ lute was strung with poets sinews,
Whose golden touches could soften steel and stones,
Make tigers tame, and huge leviathans
Forsake unsounded deeps to dance on sands.
After your dire-lamenting elegies,
Visit by night your lady’s chamber-window
With some sweet consort; to their instruments
Tune a deploring dump – the night’s dead silence
Will well become such sweet complaining grievance.
This, or else nothing, will inherit her.

PROTEUS: Already have I been false to Valentine, And now I must be as unjust to Thurio; Under the colour of commending him
I have access my own love to prefer;
But Silvia is too fair, too true, too holy,
To be corrupted with my worthless gifts.
When I protest true loyalty to her,
She twits me to my falsehood to my friend;
When to her beauty I commend my vows,
She bids me think how I have been foresworn
In breaking faith with Julia, whom I loved;
And notwithstanding all her sudden quips,
The least whereof would quell a lover’s hope,
Yet, spaniel-like, the more she spurns my love
The more it grows and fawneth on her still.
But here comes Thurio. Now must we to her window,
And give some evening music to her ear.

THURIO:
How now, Sir Proteus, are you crept before us?

PROTEUS:
Ay, gentle Thurio; for you know that love
Will creep in service where it cannot go.

PROTEUS:
Why dost thou cry ‘Alas’?

JULIA:
I cannot chose but to pity her.

PROTEUS:
Wherefore shouldst thou pity her?

JULIA:
Because methinks that she loved you as well
As you do love your lady Silvia.
She dreams on him that has forgot her love;
You dote on her that cares not for your love;
‘Tis pity love should be so contrary;
And thinking on it makes me cry ‘Alas!’

PROTEUS:
Well, give her that ring, and therewithal
This letter. That’s her chamber. Tell my lady
I claim the promise for her heavenly picture.
Your message done, hie home unto my chamber,
Where thou shalt find me sad and solitary.

THURIO:
Sir Proteus, what says Silvia to my suit?

PROTEUS:
O, sir, I find her milder than she was;
And yet she takes exceptions at your person.

THURIO:
What? That my leg is too long?

PROTEUS:
No, that it is too little.

THURIO:
I’ll wear a boot to make it somewhat rounder.
What says she to my face?

PROTEUS:
She says it is a fair one.

THURIO:
Nay then, the wanton lies; my face is black.

PROTEUS:
But pearls are fair; and the old saying is:
Dark men are pearls in beauteous ladies’ eyes.
I am burning with thoughts of Silvia.

How likes she my discourse?

Ill, when you talk of war.

But well when I discourse of love and peace.

O, sir, she makes no doubt of that.

What says she to my valour?

What says she to my birth?

That you are well derived.

Considers she my possessions?

O, ay, and pities them.

Wherefore?

CONCLUSION

Proteus is a complicated role in one of Shakespeare’s most criticized plays, and was a role that, for an actor, created several challenges. I had to portray a teenager who gets so caught up in jealousy and competition with his best friend that he is willing to do anything to score a victory, even if that meant becoming conniving and violent along the way. I also had to create a relationship with Valentine unmatched by anything the audience had ever seen, so they would believe his ultimate forgiveness of me. Lastly, I had to make Proteus vulnerable and charming and even loveable enough that the audience wouldn’t hate him by the end of the play, instead, perhaps, they would pity him.

Were we able to accurately portray Shakespeare’s dark comedy in a 1960’s setting? For the most part, yes. Did we make it clear to the audience who these people were and why they did what they did? I think so. Did I as an actor grow though the process and learn more about my craft? Most definitely. Am I glad that I got the chance to play Proteus the way he was intended to be played? Of course – jealousy, betrayal, brotherhood, vulnerability and love; all while conveying the sometimes tongue-twisting Elizabethan speech – what an actor’s dream!
“Love, lend me wings to make my purpose swift,
As thou hast lent me wit to plot this drift!”

Swine Palace takes Shakespeare back to the 60s with “Two Gentleman”

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE
October 23, 2002

BATON ROUGE – What if William Shakespeare had been a young man in the 1960s rather than the 1560s?

Swine Palace Productions’ “The Two Gentlemen of Verona” answers that question as it transports audiences to an era of bell bottoms and tie dye during its run, Nov. 6 through 24, at the Reilly Theatre on LSU’s campus.

William Shakespeare weaves a masterful tale of jealousy, infidelity and love when a friendship is put to the test as two young men fall in love with the same woman. But unlike Shakespeare’s original production, this comical story will come to life against the backdrop of 1960’s America.

According to the show’s director, John Dennis, this play challenges the code of friendship and people change their minds quickly. For these reasons, he chose to use the time period of the 1960s for the show.

“(Those things) happened most in my life during the 60s – Jimmy Hendrix replaced the Monkees,” Dennis said. “During this turbulent and very exciting time, youth changed the mores, the music and the war.”

The young cast is composed of LSU Master of Fine Arts students as well as professional actors from New York and South Carolina.

“These actors don’t know anything about this period because they weren’t around – it’s been a wonderful discovery for them," Dennis said.

This comedic journey begins with a Pay-What-You-Can Preview on Wednesday, Nov. 6, followed by the Official Sneak Preview on Thursday, Nov. 7 for which tickets are only $12. All preview performances begin at 7:30 p.m. Opening night commences Friday, Nov. 8 at 7:30 p.m. with a reception catered by Unique Cuisine following the performance. The show will continue to run until Nov. 24 with performances Wednesdays through Saturdays at 7:30 p.m. and Sundays at 2 p.m. There are performances on Saturdays when there is an LSU home football game.

Seating is reserved and admission is $12 for students, $19 for seniors and LSU employees, and $27-30 for the general public. Tickets are available at the Reilly Theatre Box Office, which is open Monday through Friday from 11:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. and one hour prior to each performance. Swine Palace’s

"The Two Gentlemen of Verona"

Sane, we’ve seen Shakespeare in love... but the Bard in lovebirds and boudoirs? When it comes to putting a new spin on classic theater, you can always count on Swine Palace.

After launching their 2002-2003 season with a critically acclaimed production of August Wilson’s "Fences", Swine Palace is set to bring Shakespeare’s "The Two Gentlemen of Verona" to the Reilly Theatre (November 7-24). John Dennis will direct this romantic comedy, and, although the play’s comedic action still centers on young people in love, he has moved the play’s setting from Verona, Italy to 1960s San Francisco, an artistic decision that should enlighten the relatively straightforward plot.

Think to-dye clothes, the Knights-Army community’s hippest alternative vibe during the “Summer of Love” and groovy,music - a sassy alternative to holiday hussies that will appeal to the inner Serengeti in all of us.

It’s a post-Halloween treat for Baton Rouge to see Dennis’ work again this summer, especially after he spent much of his summer vacating at prominent national Shakespeare festivals. In late spring, he directed the world premier of playwright Denis Bialey’s "Shibah Rules" at the Alabama Shakespeare Festival. Later his own play, "Shakespeare in Briefs," debuted at the Colorado Shakespeare Festival. SPP audiences last saw Dennis’ work at the Reilly in 2001 when he directed an adaptation of Charles Dickens’ “A Christmas Carol.”

While Dennis works diligently behind the scenes, a vibrant cast will bring the Bard’s characters to life on stage. Two professional Equity actors, Graham Frye (who portrayed “Henry P. Long” in SPP’s “The Evening: A Strange and Common Night in the Life of Henry P. Long”) and Allison Gleenzer, will play “Daniel” and “Lucetta” respectively. Other cast members include: Kevin Brown, Chris Currier, Preston Davis, Jennifer Flegler, Debbie Fleming, Nathan Fitzzell, Bruce Harris, Shawn Halliday, Adam Hove, David Helder, Sarah Johnson, Jennifer Kelley, Libby King, John Lemberton, Eric Host, Tom MacMullen, Becca Many, Michelle McCoy, R.W. Smith, Thomas Smith, Kuniqia Stewart, Chancey Taffos, and Reed Wiley.

Observe patrons of SPP’s 2001-2002 season may recognize Carcher, Fleming, Hove, Kelley, King, R.W. Smith, and Taffos. These gifted actors, along with the majority of the cast of “The Two Gentlemen of Verona”, are students in LSU’s graduate level acting program who earn “points” toward their Equity cards for their work at SPP as they build their already noteworthy resumes. Truly, one of the great benefits of having Swine Palace in our community is the opportunity to watch new talent emerge and grow under the guidance of seasoned directors like Dennis and alongside professionals like Frye and Gleazer. Who knows? Today’s student actors may be the theatrical stars of tomorrow!

This November, before the holiday madness, grab a friend and trust yourself to a bit of Shakespeare via the 60s. Tickets for “The Two Gentlemen of Verona” are on sale now and may be purchased by phone (578-3527) or online at http://www.swinepalace.org. Group, student and senior discounts are also available.

LSU STUDIO SEASON PRESENTS

"THE PURPLE BIRD AND THE COLOR TREE"

WITH NEW ORLEANS FLAIR.

A press release

A bizarre evening is inevitable when a group of New Orleans eccentrics pay a visit to a cemetery on Halloween night, as LSU Theatre’s Studio Season presents “The Purple Bird and the Color Tree,” running Oct. 31-Nov. 10.

An original script by LSU Theatre Professor Les Wade, “The Purple Bird and the Color Tree,” has been work-in-progress for over two years. It celebrates the com-memoration of the dead and proves to be a rewarding challenge for the playwright and director Martin Dean.

“The idea to write a play came several years ago,” Wade said. “And the introduction of Murf and her dedication to this project continued to focus and energize me throughout the revision process.”

Revisions for the play began with a week long workshop at Atlantic’s Horizon Theatre Festival in the summer of 2001, followed by intensive writing by Wade and stage readings by LSU Theatre students last spring.

“It’s exciting yet agonizing as a new playwright to watch my work develop,” Wade said.

“Each rehearsal reveals dramatic tension and parts of the story line that must be clarified. It’s a constant process for all of us.”

The play follows Tutip, a writer, who arrives in New Orleans on the brink of a personal crisis. With the encourage-ment of her boarding house companions, she develops an abnormal obsession with the city’s many cemeteries, resulting in an All Saint’s picnic on Halloween night.

Four principle characters, played by LSU undergraduates, head up the cast and are complemented by a sizable ensemble that is central in creating effects for the work, which opens on Halloween.

Verona gentlemen shake up Shakespeare

Play injects humor into '60s setting

By Erin Reilly
Contributing Writer

It's probably the only time you'll see a high school cheerleader sporting off lines of Shakespeare and be able to take it seriously. Swine Palace's production of "The Two Gentlemen of Verona" challenges the traditional perceptions of Shakespearean drama by setting the play in the tumultuous 1960s.

And cheerleaders are just the beginning—hippies, green beards, a gang of wannabe Village People, all sexuily changed, comprise part of the cast. John Deans-director of talent-ed ensemble that successfully translates an early Shakespearean play into the psychedelic age of revolution.

"The Two Gentlemen of Verona" centers on friends Valentine, played by K. W. Smith, and Proteus, played by Adam B. Hose. Their friendship takes interesting turns as these two gentlemen leave their small hometown of Verona. Kin, for big city Milan, San Francisco. The drastic changes the characters go through inspired Dennis to place the drama in the 1960s.

"The play is about finding freedom and finding a whole different world," Dennis said. "In the age of the '60s, there were volcanic changes and lots of experimentation and the play reflects that as well."

In comparison to Shakespeare's later work, the disjointed scenes and characters' sudden mind-set changes in "The Two Gentlemen of Verona" largely flaws the play. But Dennis uses these qualities to highlight the radical changes consistent with new environments, young love and the hippie generation.

"The storyline jumps around, it's the sitcom of Shakespeare," Smith said. "But we have fun with it."

Indeed the performance is not fluid but it does well in exposing the downfall by playing classic film Mondo and the Beatles during transitions. Yet, in opening the play with concurrent football players, the audience should be prepared for and welcoming of illogical twists in the plot.

The theme of "The Two Gentlemen from Verona" corresponds well with college life and the culture shock that many students undergo.

"Being from Nebraska and making a big move to LSU, it can understand the simple pleasures of a small town and the effects of moving into a big city," said Libby King about relating to her character and the play. "It's all about the changes that happen to the characters and the change in city that we're in."

"This play is about... the change that occurs because a person moves from the town they've always known to a brand new environment," Dennis said in an interview with doctoral candidate Elizabeth Leong.

The main characters spontaneously fall from one set of values to another attempting to generalize the text of character that change and freedom challenge. Articulate delivery by the lead actors and unique choreography better to contain the audience's attention in the midst of the flippancy plot.

In addition, impressive performances by secondary characters, Libby Kellogg as Speed, Valentine's servant, and Allison Gleenker as Lucentio, Julia's maid, greatly enhance the play.

"Love lost, cross-dressing, sexual innuendo, the comic relief of the mysterious forest and love found again all qualify. "The Two Gentlemen of Verona" as an enjoyable Shakespearean piece. But it's the creative application of the 1960s and skillful cast and crew that make the production worth seeing. In short, all happening."
